FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q What needs to happen to qualify for Plan benefits?

A After paying a one time low membership fee, Plan members are eligible for benefits if they pass away 75 or more miles from their legal home address. Additionally, the Plan member's next-of-kin must call IEA first, rather than calling other transport or deathcare providers.

Q What if a Plan member dies while traveling internationally?

A IEA will facilitate and coordinate all details and arrange transport in accordance with the member's benefits, provided the international location is more than 75 miles from the Plan member's home of record.

Q Who administers the Plan and who manages the services when needed?

A The Essential Planning Group, established in 1993 and a leading national preneed master trust and trust administration services provider, offers the Plan and administers enrollment. Transport arrangements are made by International Emergency Assistance (IEA) through its worldwide network of experienced, licensed transportation vendors.

Essential Planning for People who Travel

Preparing for the unexpected while you are away from home is important. Should death occur while traveling, transporting your remains from a distant location to your funeral or cremation provider can be complicated, costly, and stressful to your next-of-kin.

Membership in the Worldwide Travel Protection Plan lifts the burden from those you love. One phone call to Plan professionals is all it takes. Our transport facilitators will make the arrangements, and pay the costs up to $5000, so your family won't have to.

Why become a Plan member?

Worldwide Travel Protection Plan benefits save time, stress, and cost to the Plan member's next-of-kin should the Plan member die while traveling 75 or more miles from their legal residence. At a time of shock and grief, Plan members' loved ones make just one phone call to Plan professionals who immediately begin to arrange the return of the deceased to the desired funeral home or cremation provider.
